

NEW INFORMATION

LIFE STRESS REDUCTION, the first level of a metapsychology viewing program, is intended to address and resolve emotionally charged scenes, situations, issues, and individuals that are currently distressing the client (viewer).

While a portion of the material in this second-level TIR workshop will serve as a review of the basics a TIR facilitator learns in the first TIR workshop, the bulk of this workshop is designed to take a basic TIR facilitator to new heights in ability to create complete customized metapsychology case plans, using a variety of Life Stress Reduction techniques.

NEW TECHNIQUES

Whereas the basic TIR Workshop teaches TIR and Unblocking – two techniques to be found among many practical applications of a subject called by its principal developer, psychiatrist Frank A. Gerbode “Metapsychology,” – the Case Planning for TIR & Life Stress Reduction Workshop introduces TIR facilitators to a much broader range of metapsychological techniques. Like those learned in the basic TIR workshop, they rely on expertly managing communication in session and the Rules of Facilitation, and are subtle, powerful & client empowering.

The Charge on Self techniques alone make this workshop a good investment, providing the TIR facilitator with simple, effective tools with which to help clients evaluate their view of the world, release emotional charge, and make positive changes in their thinking and their lives.

WORKSHOP OBJECTIVES

This workshop is designed to help you:

- Ψ Use TIR to address complex trauma, depression and dysphoria, anxiety disorders, phobias and more.
- Ψ Select and employ tools designed to systematically resolve issues around self-esteem, body image, relationships, family, communication, education and study, work and career, spirituality, life changes, midlife crises and more.
- Ψ Write a case plan employing TIR and a selection of additional metapsychology-based techniques and programs which:
 - Systematically addresses each of a client’s specific presenting issues.
 - Can be followed step by step from session to session.
 - Will enable most non-psychotic clients to achieve their stated objectives in the course of brief therapy.
- Ψ Employ TIR and other Stress Reduction techniques in furthering the goals of clients desiring personal growth.
